Brief Report

Objective:-

This five-day Faculty Development Program (FDP) aimed to give participants a thorough understanding of the distinctions between India's new and old tax regimes. The program's objective was to give participants mostly faculty members the skills and understanding they would need to negotiate various tax regimes and inform others of their complexities and ramifications. Report:

At D.P. Vipra Law College (C.G.), the Faculty Development Program (FDP) on the comparative examination of the New and Old tax regimes was effectively carried out from September 12, 2022, to September 16, 2022. Forty people, including academic members and tax-interested professionals, actively participated in the program.

A well-known tax law expert, Mr. Pushpendra Kumar Dewangan, facilitated the sessions and conversations throughout the course of the five days. An outline of the historical development of Indian tax laws, up to the most recent modifications and the implementation of the New tax regime, was given at the start of the program.

All participants benefited greatly from the FDP on the comparative study of the New and Old tax regimes, which provided them with up-to-date information and abilities.
